

GARID MEMBER APPRECIATION DAY 2022

PRESENTS:

Linguicism in the Signing Community through Multicultural Lens

Candace Jones

Presenter's BIO

Candace Jones earned a bachelor's degree in Social Work from Gallaudet University. Candace also holds a master's degree in Deaf Education from Valdosta State University. She is one of the few Black Deaf certified educators in the USA, teaching Deaf and Hard of Hearing students in k-12 Deaf Education settings. She worked at the Atlanta Area School for the Deaf for 14 years, especially teaching ASL and Social Emotional Learning (SEL) to middle and high school students. Candace has also worked as a consultant for Georgia State University's Center on Literacy and Deafness (CLAD). She is currently working as the Director for the office of the Chief Bilingual Officer division at Gallaudet University helping to establish a new Heritage Sign Languages Center.

Webinar Objectives

- Participants will be willing to open their minds to have much-needed discussions in the breakout room.
- Participants will be interested to learn about linguicism in the Deaf and BIPOC Deaf communities through a zoom poll.
- Participants will discuss how to change and embrace multicultural identity and language in diverse communities.

Join us for a workshop to learn about Linguicism in Signing Communities through a Multicultural Lens! It is time to heal the wounds caused by language discrimination.
